Transform how your teams create, discuss, and organize their work through productivity integration!

One of Salesforce's latest acquisitions includes the productivity suite – Quip. Quip is an integration tool that has the capability to enhance the manner in which your teams collaborate together, in many ways. For example, team members no longer need to worry about email to each other – it creates a habitat to share and discuss your work in one place. It also allows you to run your projects with complete transparency, everyone on your team has visibility, access, and the tools they need. Documents and spreadsheets in Quip are perfect for sharing all project plans. Additional features include: Add images, files, spreadsheets, tables, and link to Quip documents in a single keystroke; give targeted feedback and ask questions about specific words and cells in your work; group and shared folders to house all company documents in one centralized location. The Quip component is available in both Salesforce Classic and Lightning.
